

No Proof Reds Leading U. S. In Missiles

McElroy Says Nation
Must Assume Russia
Now Has Initiative

Washington — Secretary of Defense McElroy told congress today the U. S. military does not have positive evidence that Russia is ahead in long range ballistic missiles — but that it is acting on that basis. Because time is critical, McElroy told the house armed services committee, the defense department is pushing ahead with the most promising weapons programs. He said it expects within the next 18 months to begin producing the Polaris missile, a 1,500-mile weapon capable of being fired from a submerged submarine.

McElroy also said provision for a third launching base for intercontinental ballistic missiles is included in the new budget for year beginning July 1. No location was given in the version of McElroy's testimony made public.

Secret Hearing
The secretary testified behind closed doors as the committee opened a sweeping investigation intended in the next few weeks to cover all aspects of U. S. defenses and military operations.

On the vital issue on how the United States stands by comparison to Soviet Russia in space age weapons, McElroy was guardedly reassuring.

In the field of short range weapons already available for use, "we are in a strong position," he said.

But he also said that the intermediate and intercontinental range ballistic missiles—those designed to strike targets 1,500 and 5,000 miles away—constitute a critical area.

It is because time is so important, McElroy said, that the defense department decided to go ahead with production of two intermediate range weapons, the army Jupiter and the air force Thor, although "neither has been completely tested."

Advanced Bases Help
Ideally, McElroy said, it would have been better to wait until one was perfected.

The long range missile is still farther off, he said, but he added that a combination of advanced bases and intermediate range missiles gives the United States "equivalent fire power on the target," and he said the 1,500 mile weapons might prove to be more accurate than the longer range ones.

23 Soo Line Freight Cars Leave Rails

Superior — Twenty-three cars of a 43-car Soo Line freight train derailed early today about 50 miles south of here near Danbury in Burnett county.

No one was reported injured as the middle section of the long freight left the rails and tore up about 650 feet of track.

The freight was en route from the Twin Cities to Superior when the accident occurred.

Wrecking crews on the scene said the engine was damaged, but held the rails.

Two-Thirds of $74 Billion Funds In Ike's Budget to Go for Defense

Ike Sets Conditions For Summit Session Between East, West

Suggests Far-Reaching Peace
Plan, Curtailed Use of Veto

Washington — President Eisenhower held open the door to an east-west summit conference today with word to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin that "I am ready to meet" on two conditions.

Eisenhower's reply to Bulganin also urged Soviet agreement at this "decisive moment in history" to a far-ranging peace program that would end nuclear weapons manufacture and testing, curtail use of the United Nations veto, and production of space age missiles, and dedicate outer space "to the peaceful uses of mankind."

Any top-level meeting, the president told the premier, must be preceded by an airing of issues in negotiations among diplomats and foreign ministers. Furthermore, he said, these negotiations must show "good hope of advancing the cause of peace and justice in the world" by agreements at the summit. He thus rejected Bulganin's call last week for a meeting in three months.

Diplomacy Seen

Bulganin's reaction to the president's terms could be decisively negative, but diplomats here believe that a very active period of east-west diplomacy may be opening up. They hold this view even though basic issues between Russia and the west continue deadlocked and much now being said on both sides gives the appearance of a gigantic propaganda battle.

Eisenhower's 4,000-word personal letter replied to one Bulganin sent him Dec. 10 but also clearly covered the essence of a second Bulganin note last week. The White House released the text yesterday shortly after it was delivered to the Soviet foreign office in Moscow.

It showed no essentially new propositions in U. S. foreign policies but it succeeded in stating these policies positively rather than negatively at many points. It obviously was written

Policeman Killed By Lone Gunman

Denver — A young vacationing policeman, father of six, was shot and killed as he attempted to capture a bandit who robbed a North Denver service station of $80.

Patrolman Ronald L. Seick, 27, was shot in the heart by the lone gunman, who escaped. Seick died in the street near his car as his wife, Elaine, ran to the nearby home of Mike Pomponio, Denver Democratic political figure, screaming: "My husband's been shot! Call an ambulance!"

The 26-year-old woman told police she and her husband were out for a drive and stopped at the service station while the holdup was in progress.

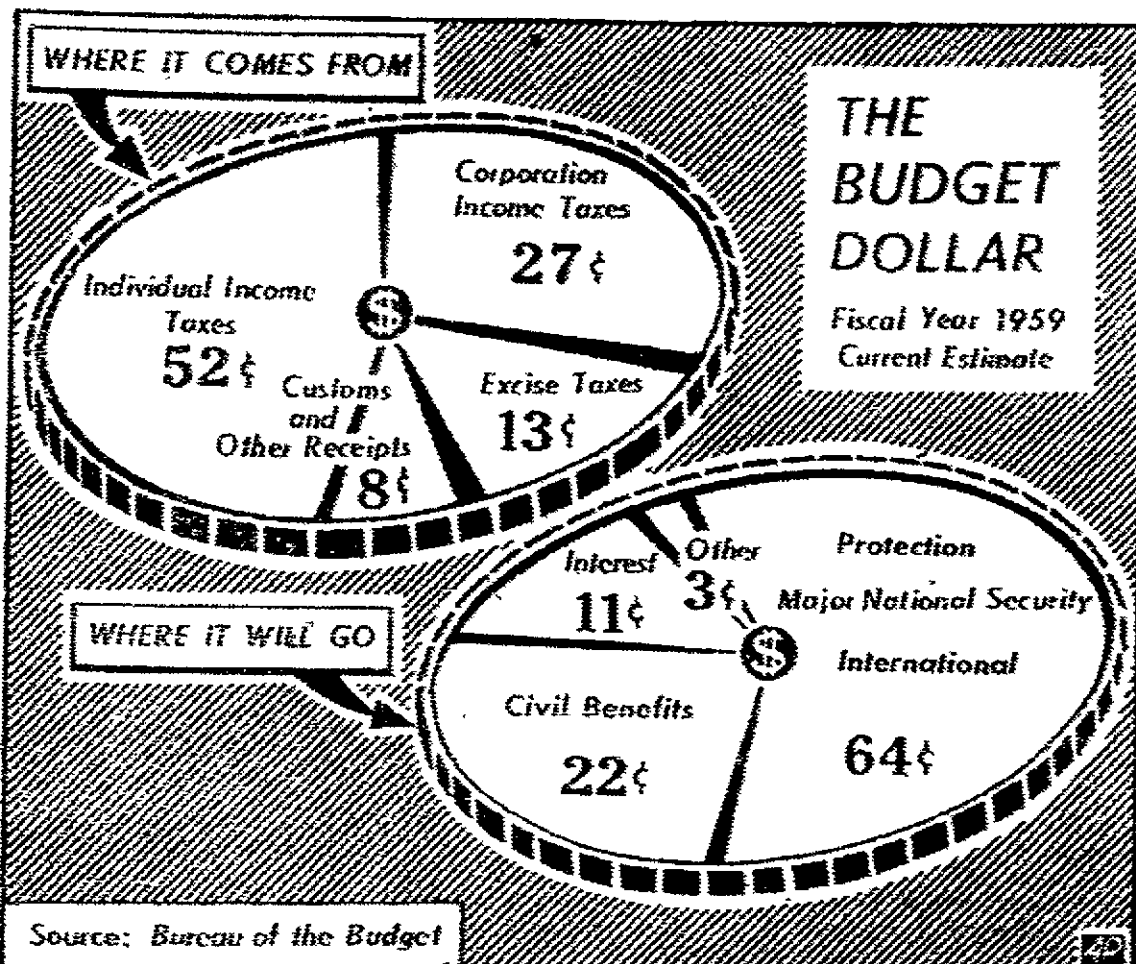

East Berlin Court Sentences American For Illegal Purchase

Berlin — A communist court in East Berlin today sentenced Dr. Walter Steinberg of Alhambra, Calif., to 10 months imprisonment on charges of illegally buying a camera in the Soviet-run sector.

The 35-year-old chiroprapist, who has been in jail since last September, was given seven days to appeal the verdict.

Steinberg, pale and looking shocked, shook his head as the communist judge handed down the sentence. He wore a rumpled grey suit. His guards had taken away his necktie and shoes. A routine precaution to prevent any suicide attempt today to name the man in a West Berlin sent a German observer to the trial. No American consular representative was present since the United States does not recognize the East German government.

2 Dead, 7 Hurt In Accidents

Woman Steps to Death; Green Bay
Man Other Victim

Chicago — A woman stepped to her death in front of a train today, starting a chain reaction which resulted in a rear-end train collision killing a railroad flagman and injuring at least seven others.

The crash occurred in a heavy fog west of Cary, in McHenry county about 40 miles northwest of Chicago on the Wisconsin Division of the Chicago and North Western Railway.

The flagman killed was F. V. Fillipelli, 22, of Green Bay, Wis., who was pinned between a locomotive and the rear car of the rammed train.

Woman Not Identified
Coroner Theron E. Ehorn said the dead woman's identity was not determined immediately.

The injured were taken to Sherman hospital, Elgin. Railroad headquarters in Chicago said four trains were involved.

Train No. 626, bound for Chicago from Crystal Lake, struck and killed the woman at a crossing of Highway 19 east of Cary.

The train stopped for an investigation of the crash. Another suburban train from Crystal Lake, No. 630, stopped behind the standing train.

The next train to approach was the Rochester Special, No. 513, bound from Rochester, Minn., for Chicago. It also stopped. No. 644, a suburban train originating at Williams Bay, Wis., and bound for Chicago, rammed the rear of the Rochester Special. The flagman at the rear of the Rochester Special was killed.

Jewelry Retailer Quizzed in Burglary

Milwaukee — Police and FBI agents Sunday questioned a 30-year-old jewelry retailer who they said admitted receiving merchandise that came from the $65,000 Majestic Jeweled grey suit. His guards had taken away his necktie and shoes. A routine precaution to prevent any suicide attempt today to name the man in a West Berlin sent a German observer to the trial. UAW Demanding Profit-Sharing Plan

Wants It in 1958 Contracts,
Drops Shorter Week Quest

Detroit — The United Auto Workers union called today for a profit-sharing plan in 1958 wage contracts and postponed demands for a shorter work week.

The union's proposed profit-sharing would begin when a manufacturer's profits topped 10 per cent, before taxes, on net capital. Corporate executives, stockholders, workers and consumers would be included in any sharing.

Formula in Use
Under the UAW proposal half of profits above 10 per cent would be retained by the manufacturer for stockholders and executives; one-fourth set aside for hourly-rated workers and salaried employees other than executives; and one-fourth for consumers in the form of rebate on purchases.

It said the division formula is used by corporations in computing executive bonuses. In postponing demands for a shorter work week, the UAW said it acted "as responsible citizens" in the light of the realities of the world situation.

The program was approved by the UAW's international executive board. It will be submitted to the union's special convention which meets in Detroit next week to shape demands to be made on the auto industry in the spring.

The union sidetracked previously announced goals of a shorter work week coupled with a substantial increase in take-home pay.

Added Benefits
It said the new program is "unique in that it departs from the usual uniform set of demands advanced by the UAW and served on all companies, regardless of size and profit position."

The union proposed an immediate general wage increase, but set no specific amount. It added, however, it should be based on increased productivity and be higher than renunciation of U.N. rights.

President Seeks Short-Term Increase in Debt Limit; Asks 5-Cent First Class Postage

Washington — (AP) — President Eisenhower sent congress today a record peacetime budget just short of $74 billion. He said by far the largest part of it, almost two-thirds, is for defense against growing danger from Russia in "the dawning age of space conquest."

The president disclosed that the government now expects to wind up in the red for the fiscal year ending June 30. He announced his intention to ask for a short-term increase—he didn't say how much—in the present $275 billion limit on the national debt.

But he voiced confidence business will pick up and tax receipts will increase so that the new $73,900,000,000 budget, for the 1958-59 fiscal year, will be in balance. He said he expects a surplus of a half billion dollars or so, compared with the $400 million deficit now in sight for this year.

Secretary of the Treasury Anderson told reporters emphatically that he expects "a resumption and resurgence of growth during the year."

The estimate of rising tax revenues, he said, is based on an official forecast that the personal income of Americans will rise from about $343 billion in 1957 to $352 billion in 1958, while corporate profits will hold even at $42 billion.

Stressing the administration's intention to pay as it goes for national defense, even though heavy spending may be necessary for "an unknowable period of time," Anderson said: "We are going to try to assure the kind of economic strength and development that is indispensable to our military security. We will neglect neither, and the world should know it."

Brighter Outlook
Budget Director Percival F. Brundage said both the federal reserve board and the president's council of economic advisers expect "a substantial recovery before summer."

One surprise in the president's proposal for government spending and revenue collection: he called for a 5-cent postage rate on all out-of-town first class letters. Congress so far has rejected even his previous call for raising stamp prices from 3 to 4 cents for local and driving instructions. Suddenly, out-of-town letters alike.

The White House announced in advance that Eisenhower's out his pistol and blazed away budget message, which ran to at the two men in the back some 22,000 words with a mass of figures attached, would be back and one in the chest. It passed over in last Thursday's state of the Union message.

Security Stressed
It did. But, like the earlier message, it put heaviest emphasis on security matters with a $39,800,000,000 request for the down and related that he was armed forces alone. With this present when Quirk was killed expected boost, almost $2 billion higher than last January's estimate, Eisenhower asked:

1. A $3,800,000,000 step-up in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production. This would give the Pentagon an extra $1,300,000,000 to spend as soon as the money was appropriated, plus 21 billions more than it now has on hand for 1958-59.

2. A $500 million reserve fund to rush development of any breakthroughs in the weapons field, together with authority to switch $2 billion around within the armed services "in order to take prompt advantage of new developments."

3. For foreign military and related aid, $3,858,000,000 to be spent in the coming fiscal year. This is a $119 million increase over the current figure. The proposal looks like one of the hottest issues to come before the new congress. Many legislators favor

London — Britain officials in all matters affecting the peaceful settlement of disputes, hailed today President Eisenhower's message to Niko-lat Bulganin and declared the Soviet premier's acceptance of its "constructive proposals" would be an important step toward world peace.

At the same time government officials here said Britain very likely would join the United States and Russia in any "general agreement" not to use their veto powers in the United Nations Security Council.

In his message, Eisenhower proposed an American-Soviet pact to renounce the use of nuclear weapons and to support the United Nations.

Ike Claims Program Will Spur Business

Record Peacetime Spending Sure To Bring About Recovery Which Will Push Budget Into Balance

$145.5 Million Asked for U. S. Education Aid

Ike Substitutes Proposal for His Construction Plan

Washington — President Eisenhower today said his record peacetime spending program will help sure the business recovery and push the budget into balance.

The president's message is the first since he took office last year. It is a message of confidence in the future of the country and in the role of government spending in supplying the stimulant to business and employment.

The acceleration of defense efforts already under way, the president said, is a part of a more rapid pace of activity in a number of programs involving starting July 1 to kick off President Eisenhower's proposed federal aid to education.

Eisenhower estimated total budget expenditures for the fiscal 1959 at $460 million, compared to the estimated $353 million for fiscal 1958 which ends next June 30.

The president said that because of present conditions, he was substituting the aid program, largely science-oriented, for the school construction program which he asked last year, but which was rejected by Congress.

Detailed proposals of the aid program, to cost an estimated billion dollars spread over a 4-year period, will be detailed in legislative proposals which the president said he would send to Congress later.

Parts of the program already disclosed include provision for 10,000 college scholarships and 1,000 more graduate fellowships a year and an extensive program of matching grants to states to select, guide and train outstanding students, improve teaching facilities in science and mathematics and promote foreign language studies. The states would handle most details.

Both this program and expansion of related work by the national science foundation were proposed after Russian scientific achievements brought complaints that this nation was falling down in its training of scientists and technicians.

In his budget message, Eisenhower indirectly took note of fears expressed by some educators that federal aid may eventually lead to federal control of education.

"... I strongly recommend," the president said, "that this federal participation in the nation's educational processes be limited to four years ... and be considered as an emergency stimulant to encourage the states and local communities to bring their educational systems up to date in the light of our modern scientific age. The proposed federal assistance is carefully designed to insure against any possible domination by the federal government of our educational system."

Eisenhower also asked appropriations of $140 million for the national science foundation for fiscal 1959.

Capital City of Okinawa State AFL-CIO Elects U. S. Foe Mayor Ousts Teamsters

Action by Voters Seen as Stinging Repudiation of American Policy on Island

BY JAMES CARY

Naha, Okinawa — P — An ardent foe of the United States was elected mayor of Naha, capital of the American far eastern base island of Okinawa.

Leftist independent Saichi Kaneshi defeated Tatsuo Taira, a moderate socialist who had promised to cooperate with the United States. The result was a stinging repudiation of U. S. policy on the former Japanese island the Americans have occupied since World War II.

Virtually complete official returns from the voting yesterday gave Kaneshi 35,118 votes to 34,118 for Taira. More than 70 percent of the city's 99,739 voters cast ballots.

Lt. Gen. James Moore, U. S. Proxmire Sees Chance Of Meeting Missile Need Without Tax Hike

Milwaukee — P — Sen. Proxmire (D-Wis.) said Sunday that an extra $3 billion for U. S. missiles projects "could conceivably be handled without further tax increases."

Proxmire made the comment while talking with a panel of interviewers over a Milwaukee television station.

The Wisconsin Democrat referred to an annual increase of $3 billion in the nation's missile program suggested in the Rockefeller report on national defense.

Proxmire also reiterated his contention that the president "hasn't told us all the facts" and should ease public concern by telling the full story of U. S. preparedness and Russian missile prowess.

Asked about Wisconsin's unemployment, Proxmire said the situation was "serious" and said he is trying to make sure in Washington that Wisconsin gets its fair share of government defense contracts.

Three Persons Killed Over Weekend in Auto Accidents

Milwaukee — P — A collision and two 2-car accidents in Wisconsin cost three lives during the weekend, raising Wisconsin's 1958 traffic death toll to 16, five less than the total on this date in 1957.

George Cox, Jr., 28, Mineral Point, died early Sunday when his auto struck a steel bridge on Grant County Trunk B, nine miles west of Platteville. A bridge railing pierced the car and crushed him.

Miss Irene Vogt, 17, Beaver Dam, was killed early Sunday on a Columbia county road in the town of Courtland. She was riding in a car which swerved from the road and crashed into a ditch.

Ronald Carstensen, 18, rural Medford, was killed Friday in the collision of his auto from a city administration and another car on Highway 64, four miles east of Medford.

Johnson Says U. S. Using Only Half Measures in Missile, Satellite Race

Claims Testimony Shows All-Out Effort Not Being Made, Planned

Washington — P — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas) said today the United States still is employing only "half measures" in its effort to pull the conquest of space. Now we are abreast of Russia in missile and satellite developments.

Johnson, chairman of the senate preparedness subcommittee, said he believes there is "no longer any question about the specific dangers that face this nation" because of Soviet advances in the missile field.

"But I do not believe we can claim to be putting our whole heart into our defense when we are engaged in half-measures," he said in an interview. "According to the sworn testimony of the men responsible for producing missiles, we are neither doing nor planning to do everything that can and should be done."

To Resume Inquiry

The subcommittee resumes its inquiry into the rocketry program today with testimony from industrialists.

"The real problem before us," Johnson said, "is to lay down the specific blueprints of action that will lead us on the road to security."

Johnson's estimate of the problem this country faces coincided largely with that of Sen. Knowland of California, the senate's Republican leader.

Knowland said in a weekend speech at Lexington, Va., that the Soviets "have a long range missile capability which must not be underestimated."

"The challenge facing this country," Knowland added, "is to make sure that we overtake the Soviet lead in the missile field and that we retain a deterrent power in our strategic air command that would effectively persuade the Soviet Union that they cannot commit aggression against us without suffering devastating counterblows."

Says U.S. Stronger

But house Republican Leader Martin (Mass) contended yesterday that "America today is stronger than the Soviets in the missile field."

He said in a television interview that "we are well able to protect our country if the need should come," and added that he spoke "as one who has had information available that would make me make this statement." He gave no specific details.

Allegations by some that the Eisenhower administration lacks a sense of urgency are probably politically inspired, Martin said, adding: "If there is any complacency, it is in the Soviet camp."

Outer Space — If Russia believes as Bulganin had said, halting weapons production, the arms race should be halted. Eisenhower declared, "can we not stop the production of such weapons which of three years (as Russia would use, or more accurately posed), but indefinitely." With-misuse, outer space... out a program to halt production. Should not outer space be dedicated to peaceful uses of mankind and denied to the purpose of war? That is my proposal.

Nuclear Weapons — The United States and Russia should bring space and nuclear weapons under control to cut work to end their "now un-back conventional weapons and restrained production." Since military manpower progress the United States has bigger stocks than Russia, it would be willing to drain off larger supplies of weapons material for peaceful purposes. Eisenhower meaning reciprocal aerial and invited Bulganin to suggest a ground inspection of Russia. ratio for American and Russian the United States and other countries agreeing to disarmament.

Safeguards — Every step in all disarmament measures must be covered by inspection systems which Eisenhower called "the capacity to verify the fulfillment of commitments." He suggested that Russia and the United States "study together through technical groups" the measures that could be taken.

United Nations — Russia and the United States should "re-dedicate ourselves" to the organization and its charter pledges. Furthermore the two powers should renounce use of the veto in the U. N. security council in cases involving peaceful settlement of disputes. The president reminded Bulganin that Russia has used the veto 82 times.

Germany — Bulganin agreed at the Geneva conference to reunification of Germany by free elections but for proposals Bulganin had previously made.

24 years has failed to act, the letter noted. Eisenhower urged that "we now proceed vigorously to bring about the reunification of Germany by free elections, as we agreed, and as the situation urgently demands."

Eastern Europe — At the Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill meeting at Yalta in 1945, Russia agreed eastern European peoples should have the right to choose their own form of government. But Russia made the countries communist satellites. The president proposed that "we should now discuss this matter... in the interest of peace and justice, which seems to me compelling."

All Involve Deadlocks — Every point the president brought up in his proposals is involved in some deadlock between Russia and the west.

British Officials Hail Proposals to Bulganin through the permanent council of the Atlantic alliance in Paris. Like Eisenhower Macmillan intends leaving the door open for an ultimate summit conference but only after the ground has been thoroughly prepared. The British leader is in Pakistan on a tour of eastern countries of the British commonwealth. Amended terms of the draft reply have been cabled to him for approval.

There also was some criticism of the contents of the president's letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin—a feeling that Eisenhower may have defined too carefully the conditions under which he would attend a meeting of government leaders.

Despite this, however, there was a general feeling in papers of various political hues that an "if" from Eisenhower was better than a "no" to Russia's propaganda hammering for east-west talks.

Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Russia, delivered Eisenhower's 4,000-word reply to the Soviet foreign office in Moscow late yesterday.

Soviet Press Silent

There was no immediate reaction in the Soviet press or radio. The communist party organ Pravda published Bulganin's letters to the prime ministers of Belgium and Denmark but made no mention of the delivery of Eisenhower's reply.

It is usual Soviet practice to withhold publication of such communications or even comment on them until the Kremlin has replied.

Eisenhower's letter drew more barbs from the British press than elsewhere.

The laborite Daily Herald asserted that Secretary of State Dulles, "with his eternal 'no, no, no,' is becoming as great a menace to peace as was Mr. Molotov in the first years after the war."

The liberal Manchester Guardian took this editorial view: "Mr. Dulles seems to have won. The reply by President Eisenhower... leaves little hope that there can soon be fruitful negotiations at the summit."

Too Extensive

The president, the Guardian suggested, might have made some diplomatic progress if he had stuck to one or two issues in his letter instead of taking "in almost the whole range of east-west relations."

The conservative Daily Mail thought the president's letter was disappointing, saying: "There was no answering challenge. No inspiration. No new proposals to fire the imagination or regain the initiative for the west."

Paris papers were kinder. The conservative Figaro predicted the French public would greet the president's reply with "satisfaction and relief." The newspaper added:

"President Eisenhower does not limit himself to answering the Soviet proposals. He also makes proposals. In a style that Marshal Bulganin himself would not disavow he gives surprising proofs of an imagination that we thought extinguished forever."

The leftist, non-communist Combat said the president's letter "contains" original proposals, in particular the one concerning the use of space for specific purposes.

President Sets Conditions for Summit Talks for the eyes of the world as well as Bulganin, and state department officials hoped it would overcome recent gains in Soviet propaganda.

Tone is Cordial

Eisenhower's tone was cordial throughout but at times he struck hard at Soviet behavior as well as Soviet proposals for settling outstanding cold war issues. He rejected or discounted about eight proposals Bulganin had put forward, including those for an east-west non-aggression pact and a German-Polish-Czech zone free of nuclear weapons.

He accused Russia of a "great error" in failing to reunify Germany as agreed at the Geneva summit conference in 1955. He blamed the cold war on the "expansionist policy" of Soviet communism.

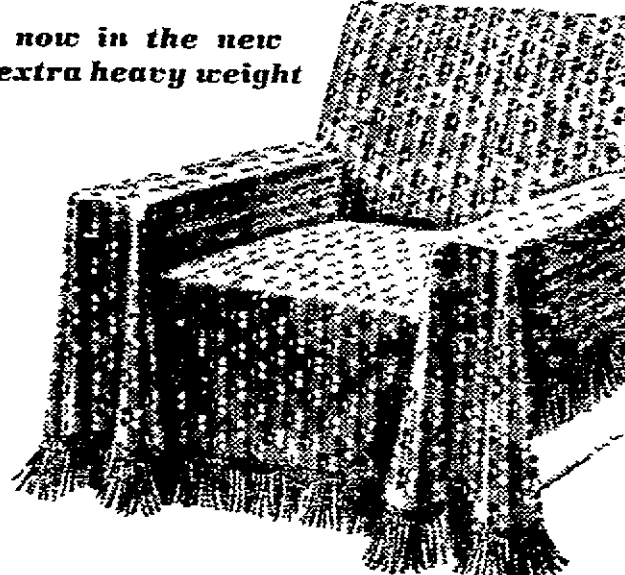

That policy, he said, "cannot be sanctified by protestations of peace." He pledged that the United States would never engage in aggression and pointedly expressed hope that "the Soviet Union will feel a similar aversion to any kind of aggression."

The upshot of the Eisenhower-Bulganin exchange at this point is that both men agree a summit conference might do some good for the world but they disagree on almost everything else — the timing, the preparation, the precise problems to be discussed and the solutions to be sought. Further exchanges, however, can be expected.

Two-Thirds Funds for Defense In 'Age of Space Conquest' cutting foreign aid—a course Eisenhower says would be reckless gambling with western security.

All told the president's new budget calls for 1958-59 spending at more than a billion dollars over the current rate even allowing for recommended cuts in missile and other weapons programs. Add the current spending program, running at $70-$80 billion a year, and the total in American defense outlays.

Cutbacks Included

Eisenhower called for cutbacks as well as increases in the new budget. For the armed forces he recommended a $1.4 billion slash in manpower installations and older-type weapons, including B-50 bombers and some other aircraft. And he proposed curtailment of "non-military programs," ranging from federal payments to farmers to expenditures for war veteran services and bene-

Eisenhower said. "Americans have a tradition of winning in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shrink our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise."

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawning age of space conquest."

He told Congress, too, his program reflected the administration's "gradually but substantially" changing emphasis in the light of "growing dangers" from Russian military advances.

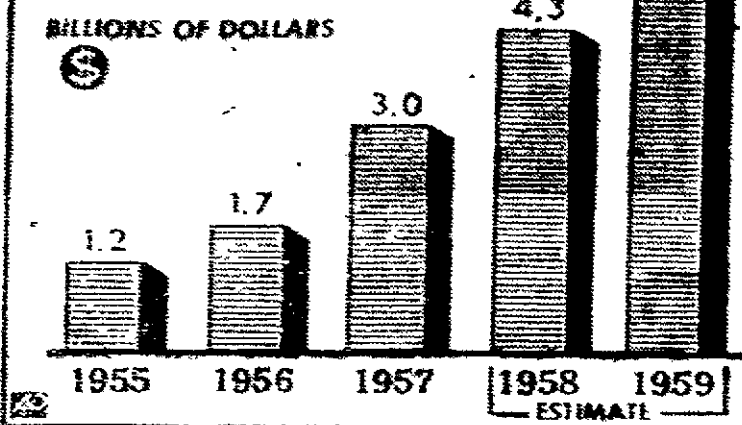

No General Tax Boost
Sixty-four per cent of the new budget is devoted to "protection"—armed forces, military aid to allies and the like—compared with 63 per cent of the current budget.

And, as the White House forecast earlier, no general tax increases are proposed. Eisenhower suggested, in fact, some tax cuts to aid small business, while recommending higher taxes on aviation fuels to reduce the cost to the government of its activities in the air traffic field.

Likewise, the president included in his message a previously announced plan for a 4-year, billion dollar program aimed at helping states improve education standards. But he said he was not repeating at this time his proposal—which failed to win approval in Congress last year—of federal aid for school construction.

He came up with at least one recommendation which, like his foreign aid plan, is sure to meet opposition: A 5-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act, with more power for the president to make tariff-cutting agreements with other countries. Congress has shown reluctance to grant this in past years.

Farm Program Cut

On the cutback side of the budget, Eisenhower's proposals included:

1. A $300 million cut in farm program spending, bringing the estimated total to $4,600,000,000. He said "important revisions" are needed in price support, conservation and rural credit programs and added he would give details in a special message later. His budget message did, however, propose ending the acreage reserve program at the end of the 1958 crop year.

2. A $22 million drop in veterans' expenditures. This would bring the cost next year to $5 billion. Eisenhower said the cut would be possible because of "a decline in the readjustment needs of veterans of the Korean war and from economies in operations."

3. Higher interest rates on government-insured or guaranteed mortgages and similar loans. The president urged that private financing be substituted for government loans and lower suggested, in fact, some mortgage purchases wherever possible.

"Growing Danger"
In general, Eisenhower made a strong appeal for state and private bodies to take over whatever federal programs they can in the interest of sound

Rhee's Only Opponent In 1956 Elections

Arrested by Police

Seoul — South Korean national police announced the arrest today of onetime communist Cho Bong Am, President Syngman Rhee's only opponent in the 1956 presidential elections.

National police Director Suh Chung Hak said his men found evidence that Cho and leaders of his progressive party "have had connections" with North Korean espionage groups.

Five other progressive leaders, including the party's only member of the 202-seat national assembly Kim Dal Ho, were arrested for questioning.

Cho, 60, quit the communist party in 1946 and was Rhee's July 1. he said it reflects the great impact of science on modern military power, and added: "The tempo of change is increasing and the change during the coming year will be greater than in any preceding year."

An analysis of the statistics in his budget and the facts behind it showed how sharp is the trend.

Missiles are soaring toward dominance in the American arsenal. The outlay for their perfection and production will be $3,314,000,000, already almost half of the total for warplanes. And almost half of the total missile outlay will be for ballistic weapons, where the race with Russia is keenest.

83,000-Man Slash For Armed Forces

'Outer Space Vehicles' for First Time in Budget Message

BY ELTON C. FAY

Washington — Military spending of a peacetime record $39,779,000,000 next year was asked by President Eisenhower today to add what he called "new dimensions...to our defenses."

Submitting to Congress his budget for the year starting July 1, he said it reflects the great impact of science on modern military power, and added: "The tempo of change is increasing and the change during the coming year will be greater than in any preceding year."

An analysis of the statistics in his budget and the facts behind it showed how sharp is the trend.

Missiles are soaring toward dominance in the American arsenal. The outlay for their perfection and production will be $3,314,000,000, already almost half of the total for warplanes. And almost half of the total missile outlay will be for ballistic weapons, where the race with Russia is keenest.

Manpower Cut Seen
The proposed spending increase over this year is modest—$913 million. The difference is in the way the money would be spent.

For the first time, the words "military satellite" and "outer space vehicles" appear in the budget message as part of future planning.

Military manpower is headed for still another cutback as the power of the 83,000-man reduction would include 30,000 in the army, 28,000 in the navy and marine corps, and 25,000 in the air force.

As missiles increase aircraft diminish—fewer combat wings, fewer planes. But "all fighters and bombers proposed for procurement with 1959 appropriations will be capable of supersonic speeds," Eisenhower said.

That means the end of new orders for the subsonic all-jet B52 bomber when the presently planned total of 600 is reached. The air force unit strength would be trimmed from a present 130 wings to 105 by the end of the next fiscal year; its inventory of planes cut by more than 1,200 from today's nearly 22,000.

Wing to be Eliminated

Biggest cut would be in the expanded research and development effort on military satellites and other outer space vehicles, and on anti-missile defense systems, to be carried out directly under the secret army ground forces, and a tary of defense.

As part of a $1,370,000,000 new $10,913,000,000, supplement to the present fiscal 1958 budget, the president which operates the interceptor force, would lose one wing, reducing it to 27 wings. The reason: More anti-aircraft missiles, like the new long range bomarc and the close-in nuke. The strategic air command operators of the long and medium range nuclear striking force, will drop one wing for a total of 43, with the cut apparently in the present 5-wing reconnaissance force. The B52 force will stay at the planned strength of 11 wings.

The new B58 supersonic medium bomber will be produced in "production quantities," in the words of a defense official. The budget also asks the funds to go forward with the "chemical fuel" long range bomber, an aircraft designed for 2,000 mile per hour use in anti-submarine work. A speed and able to reach Russia and return to U. S. bases, nonstop.

Eisenhower said that construction of a new ballistic missile detection system would be started, along with expansion and improvement of the early warning network built to detect bomber attacks. That seemed to mean that the new 3,000-mile range radar equipment sites will be built for installation of the units.

For tomorrow's warfare in space, Eisenhower referred to the soon-to-be-formed "advanced research projects agency."

proposes to provide $10 million to start off ARPA, plus an authorization to tap unexpended balances of the armed forces. In the new budget, 340 million dollars would be added to these funds.

The new ship program will include a nuclear propelled submarine equipped for firing the Regulus guided missile, the four other atomic-powered submarines, and the navy's first nuclear-powered frigate for use in anti-submarine work. A new pressurized water nuclear power plant would be substituted for the unsatisfactory sodium-type reactor in the submarine.

No money is in the budget for starting the hull of a section of the old atomic aircraft carrier, already warning network built to detect bomber attacks. That seemed to mean that the new 3,000-mile range radar equipment sites will be built for installation of the units.

For tomorrow's warfare in space, Eisenhower referred to the soon-to-be-formed "advanced research projects agency."

Aircraft procurement drops in the new budget, with the air force to get 900, the navy 700 and the army 300. The spending budgets for the three services look like this: Army—Present budget estimate $9,043,000,000, new budget $8,880,000,000; Navy—Present $10,640,000,000; Air Force—Present $18,441,000,000; new $18,736,000,000.

50 or More Countries
Eligible for U. S. Aid
Under Budget Requests
New Money for Program Tops
Last Year's Goal $86 Million

BY JOHN SCALI
Washington — Congress was urged today to provide $3,940,000,000 in "critically needed" new foreign aid funds to offset communist Russia's threats to attack, subvert and terrorize free nations.
President Eisenhower, making the request in his budget message, estimated foreign aid spending during the year starting July 1 at $3,868,000,000, up $119 million from the current year's figure. Much of the spending will be from money already appropriated.
The fund, carrying America's aid program into a 12th straight year, would pay for military, economic and technical assistance to 50 or more countries.
The request for new money is $86 million more than last year's Eisenhower proposal which congress cut by a billion dollars. It includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance, $865 million in defense support for economic help to countries getting the arms aid, and $1,275,000,000 in other economic and technical assistance including easy - payment development loans.
Eisenhower also gave notice he might ask for an additional $200 million to begin furnishing intermediate range missiles to European allies who agree to base them on their territory. Responsible officials said that was the meaning of Eisenhower's statement that "To fulfill probable needs growing out of agreements at the recent NATO meetings, an additional amount of up to $200 million for procurement of more missiles and other new equipment is covered by the allowance for proposed legislation and contingencies for the fiscal year 1958."
Only Turkey, Britain and France among America's 14 Atlantic pact allies have specifically indicated they want such missiles.
Eisenhower proposed that congress authorize these four additional steps to back up the aid program:
Extend the reciprocal trade act, which expires June 30, for another five years and permit more tariff cutting agreements with friendly countries.
World Trade Group
Approve U. S. membership in the proposed international trade organization which will seek to set up a code of fair commercial conduct.
Repeal a law which he said "virtually prohibits normal competitive bidding" by foreign countries on defense contracts.
Eisenhower said this law is "clearly inconsistent with policies designed to expand international trade and makes our heavy defense costs even more burdensome."
Add $2 billion more to the capital of the government's export - import bank to back up "its steadily increasing role" in financing economic development abroad.
In keeping with the tone he set in his state of the Union message, Eisenhower put in a strong plea for the need of economic as well as military aid funds.
"If western help is unavailable or inadequate, these countries may become dependent upon the communist bloc," he said, adding at another point, "Soviet ambition poses a threat to the free countries that takes several forms. Open armed attack, internal subversion, and economic domination. Mutual security helps to meet all forms of this threat."

5-Cent Stamp
Big Surprise
In Message
Washington — The biggest surprise in history's biggest peacetime budget is a 5-cent stamp. President Eisenhower would have it replace 3-cent postage on inter-city letters.
Eisenhower told congress today he is depending on this and other increases in postal rates to put the federal government back into black ink in fiscal 1959.
His budget message estimated the postage rate increases would add $700 million to federal revenues in the year starting next July 1.
Since the prospective surplus for that year is just $500 million, a refusal by congress to approve the new rates would mean a $200 million federal deficit.

4-Cent Proposal
With most of the remainder of his domestic program publicized in advance, Eisenhower had been expected to renew his request for postage increases along lines of those passed last year by the house and now awaiting action in the senate.
The bill calls for a 4-cent rate on all first class mail, local or inter-city, and higher rates for advertising matter, parcels, newspapers and magazines. It still would leave a large deficit, and Eisenhower told congress:
"The pending legislation should be amended, primarily by establishing a 5-cent letter rate on all except local letters. This is more than the 4-cent rate I recommended last year for both local and other letters, but it is needed to take account of the (postal) pay increase and other higher costs."
With the postal pay adjustments which are being recommended (a $160 million increase), the postal deficit still will be substantial.

financing economic development abroad.
In keeping with the tone he set in his state of the Union message, Eisenhower put in a strong plea for the need of economic as well as military aid funds.
"If western help is unavailable or inadequate, these countries may become dependent upon the communist bloc," he said, adding at another point, "Soviet ambition poses a threat to the free countries that takes several forms. Open armed attack, internal subversion, and economic domination. Mutual security helps to meet all forms of this threat."

A committee composed of Ray Koplen, L. L. Taylor and Syd Faulks, Chamber of Commerce members, and Larry Kamp, a Weyauwega High school student, was named to present their views at the next city council meeting.

Highway Fund Segregation

Recent political debate has served the useful purpose of putting again before the eyes of Wisconsin voters one of the important aspects of state financial management, and one that has had little public discussion since a decade ago when it was contrived. The highway fund segregation law, however, does not have such a quality of sanctity about it that it ought not to be reviewed in public discussion from time to time, whatever some of the excessively proprietary highway promoters of the state may think.

We don't know exactly where Sen. Nelson of Madison, the Democratic candidate for governor who is the author of this debate revival, actually stands on the issue of segregating highway funds. We hope he supports the system, for it is an honest, easy, fair and effective way of handling the financing of the state highway network which is one of the vital arteries of our public service system.

The tone of Sen. Nelson's recent criticisms of state highway affairs, however, has evidently been such as to alarm some of the highway interests. For he has been accused of desiring to abolish this system of putting aside all highway taxes for highway purposes and, as far as the state is concerned, taxing the highway user in proportion to his highway use for the maintenance and construction of state roads and the subsidizing of a good portion of our local roads.

The tone of some of his critics is such as to imply that any such position would be a heinous one. We believe in the segregation of highway taxes, for what we think are sound reasons, but we don't believe there is anything so vital about the device that some tolerance of view cannot be permitted.

There are some perfectly earnest and intelligent folk in Wisconsin who feel otherwise about the matter — as well as some conscientious and attentive editors. One difficulty with the segregated highway system is that it permits one level of spending for highways — currently a fairly luxurious level — and another for other services equally deserving, and perhaps more deserving in some eyes. There are those who would use some highway taxes for other governmental purposes, among them are some of those self-conscious "liberals" who are forever belaboring the sales tax. What is the motor fuel tax if it is not a sales tax?

If the highway department is spending too much money, or building more roads than we need, there is an easy solution. Cut the highway taxes. But the segregation of these taxes, and the assurance that the highway user will pay for roads in precise proportion to his benefits from those roads, is perhaps the fairest method of apportioning cost liability that any Wisconsin law has ever embodied.

Danger in Pests and in Their Control

Leaders of the great nations of the world have it within their power to eliminate certain weapons and possibly to eliminate war itself if they can generate sufficient good will toward one another. However, the people fighting the continuing war against insects have no such option. The attack of the insects goes on so long as there is anything to attack, and no truce is possible.

The choice of weapons, however, is a matter of great importance for the chemicals used often have side effects which may be compared with the fallout of atomic weapons in human warfare. Right now the National Audubon society is calling on the Department of Agriculture to stop all insect control programs in which toxic chemicals are spread unless it can be shown that no serious damage to human and wildlife will result.

During the past year the department sponsored a program of broadcasting DDT to prevent the spread of the Dutch Elm disease in several eastern states. The first result was widespread complaints that the insecticide had caused the deaths of thousands of birds, fish and small animals in the area treated. The effect on the elm beetles which carry the disease to the trees is not yet known.

However the Audubon society's protest at this time is against the proposal to spray about 20 million acres in nine southern states in the hope of controlling the fire ant. The fire ant damages land by building mounds, making it impossible to work the land. It also protects itself with its poisonous sting and is known to have killed children.

In the meantime an insect control conference in Madison was concerned with finding methods for control of such pests as the Dutch elm disease and the termite.

Termites were recently discovered in a 9-block area in the city of Sheboygan, and nearly 500 trees in seven counties in the southeastern part of Wisconsin have been infected with the Dutch elm disease. Those at the pest control conference were warned that both the elm disease and the termites will keep advancing until halted by some form of control. The termites can be handled without endangering the public or other forms of life, but if the Dutch elm disease advances as expected, Wisconsin will soon be faced with the threat that was met in New York and Pennsylvania with DDT spray.

Specialists at the University of Wisconsin have been working on the development of an elm that resists the disease, but the strains so far produced do not make good shade trees, according to Prof. E. B. Smalley. Prof. E. J. Casida and Abdoullah Azawi, specialists in the control of insects, have been working on a systemic insecticide. This form of insecticide may be injected into the tree and is carried to all parts in the sap. While the work so far is promising, there is no prospect that a recommendation on its use can be made within a year, Prof. Casida told the conference.

In the meantime it would seem that the best defense would be an intensive fight on the bark beetle in the small area where it is now known to exist. Later if the beetle is found in other distant areas the fight could be continued on a local basis but with state help. The alternative appears to be wholesale spraying of large areas in later years. If there is anything that can be done now to confine the disease to a few counties or to wipe it out, it should be done. A few dollars spent now could save thousands later.

Get Ready for Paper Dishes

Paper dishes have done pretty well in some fields such as the picnic and the church supper, and elsewhere when cold food is served. They have never gained great popularity elsewhere although they are becoming familiar as containers for individual portions such as jellies and jams.

Now, however, the manufacturers are preparing to go after the big hospital field. A leader in a paper products sales organization says several hundred hospitals are now using paper dishes in varying amounts. The number with complete paper service is small but growing, and this is the field the salesmen are about to attack.

Hospitals are familiar with the paper cup for medicines, dentures, surgical specimens and other purposes, and the salesmen will emphasize the sanitary possibilities of paper dishes. It is estimated that about 4 billion meals are served by hospitals each year, and the stack of dishes used is the goal of the paper dish distributors.

The manufacturers are doing their part by turning out plastic-lined dishes for hot foods and beverages, wax-lined dishes for cold dishes, liquids and desserts and a variety of portion cups for butter, jams and the like.

The chief saving comes from elimination of dishwashing which reduces the need for hot water, detergents, storage space and some kitchen help. The trays are much lighter with paper plates and easier to carry and costly breakage is eliminated, the salesmen say. The paper producers say fewer than 1 per cent of the patients complain of paper plates or ask for the return to china where the paper articles have been used on a trial basis.

Very probably the decision in hospitals and other institutions will depend largely on comparative costs. In other fields it will probably be a matter of breaking down long-established habits. But the use of paper has come along so rapidly in other fields it seems reasonable to believe that the disposable paper dish will be in general use in the near future.

Needless Tax on Education

From New York Herald-Tribune
It is bad enough to be damaging education and the training of science through neglect and inadequate salaries. But to inflict intentional injuries through stupid laws borders on the criminal. That is what congress has already done through some of its silly tariff laws.

Take the case of Adelphi college on Long Island as reported in the Herald Tribune. Recently it bought $1,800 of badly needed technical equipment for demonstrating atomic. Since the school bought it in West Germany, almost half the total cost went into tariffs. There is no sense in having such tariffs in the first place. But even when they exist, schools ought to be exempt. To impose tariffs on school equipment is to place a double taxation on the taxpayers who support schools. Let congress stop this nonsense by passing H. R. 9549 advanced by the American Association of Physics Teachers for the duty-free entry of scientific apparatus designed for instruction and research by tax-free educational institutions.

'We'd Let You See It but We're Afraid You Might be Overcome With Joy'

These Days

Administrators, System Criticized For Failures in U. S. Education

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY
(Copyright, 1958)

A social science teacher writes me that teachers are not allowed to teach. This brings us down to bedrock in a very serious problem, namely, that our children probably get more schooling and know less than children who attend European schools. The evidence is available on this subject, because when children from abroad come to our schools, they are regarded as bright children, whereas when we send our children abroad, they need to catch up. And it is not all due to the language difficulty.

Sokolsky

This teacher, who is now holding a job, writes me: "The administrators expect the teachers to 'teach the whole child' — but, teach him nothing. Anything that requires work on the part of the student is frowned upon. Everything must be easy and Johnny must always be happy and never know failure. As a result of this philosophy Johnny reaches high school without knowing how to read or write or do simple arithmetic problems. The remarkable thing is that some few do learn these things fairly well. The majority of the students are far from being ready for high school."

It's the System

Many teachers are writing me these days about their experiences from many parts of the country, and from the letters, I reach the conclusion that the fault is neither with the teachers nor the pupils but with a system of education that does not recognize that some learn speedily, some slowly; that some may be pushed ahead; that others must be retarded. The system that an entire class must be moved up to make room for the next entire class is not only harmful to the child; it is a rejection of the obvious fact that no two human beings are alike in any respect and that a system that is based on averages must be unjust to both the most brilliant and the most stupid students. An average never invented or produced anything.

As this teacher from Ohio writes me:

"... I repeat again — these young people are not stupid; they simply have never been taught to use their ability to learn but they have been taught to expect something for nothing, and they know absolutely nothing about taking responsibility." So the teacher gets into trouble. Why are so many of his pupils marked F? Why are there not more C's? The truth, of course, is that there ought to be even more F's. The teachers are afraid to mark as they should.

Why should smart young men or women go into teaching when they are not permitted to teach and if they spend enough years in the system, what else is there to do? The Ohio teacher asks:

"Now, what is the high school teacher to do? If he tries to get some work out of the student or has many failures he is called to the principal's office. Then if they continue he is called to the superintendent's office. Yes, this has happened several times in our system and in several others I know well."

"The teachers do not dare disagree with the philosophy of the administrators."

Other Errors

On the other hand it is our children who are involved in this system which is based upon certain fundamental errors, namely:

1. That all children must remain in school up to an age specified by law, 16 or 18, whether they learn anything or not;
2. That all children must be promoted whether they deserve it or not;
3. That marking is done on a curve instead of on individual merit, so that the norm of the class is determined by an average student;
4. That a teacher's value is to be measured by the ability to work within administrative margins (team work) and not by knowledge and expertness in the subject taught;
5. That democratic principles require that the teacher should not discipline the students lest the student regard himself as socially unwanted or unfit.

If a teacher speaks of morals and ethics and happens to quote from the bible or a great religious leader, there is always danger that the child will repeat what the teacher said and immediately there will be an outcry regarding separation of church and state. How can leadership be trained in a civilization based on the Judeo-Christian civilization without reference to the Bible?

The reply ought to be obvious, but is it?

Under the Capital Dome

Proxmire's Ink Begins to Worry Gov. Thomson

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The sun came through the wintry sky this morning and Ole, the capitol square philosopher of politics and its oddities, was holding court on his customary capitol park bench.

Ole has seen a good deal of men and political events and is sometimes envied for his sources of information and his capacity to interpret the political tidbits of the day. He greeted his visitor cordially, invited him to sit down for a while, and demanded with a kind but knowing smile:

"Your friend Gov. Thomson, I hear, is worried about his publicity?"

"Yes, they say that he's about to hire a new publicity man," allowed the visitor. "It's probably a good idea. The man he has had has been filling in and actually was hired for something else. All governors now have press agents. It appears to be a necessity of the times."

O: "Yes, it seems so. I can remember when a governor's dignity required a chauffeur and a limousine. And the people expected it of him. Now he drives his own car, but he has to have other helpers we never knew when I was young."

"But what I meant was that Vernon is worried about how the papers are treating him. I hear he has compared his publicity volume with Proxmire's and that he's mad about it."

V: "As a matter of fact, I've noticed that, too. Proxmire's on page one, Thomson's tucked away in the corner. Proxmire is on television and radio every day — most of the time a couple of shots each day. Thomson's been experimenting with a television show of his own, trying to keep even."

O: "Well, he isn't going to cure that by hiring fancy press agents. The way I see it, Thomson doesn't yet realize the size of the job he has, and Proxmire does. Thomson is the head of his party, but he doesn't act like it, sometimes almost seems that he's afraid of the idea. Proxmire isn't. He's the boss man of the Democrats and he isn't letting anybody forget it. He's talking like the top man, and he's making more news. While Thomson is giving a speech reciting statistics about Wisconsin agriculture or industry, or crowning a dairy queen, Proxmire is talking about the issues of the day. He's a pretty smart fellow. I don't know that I remember any politician hereabouts who knows as much about publicity and how to get it as this new senator of ours."

V: "But most of this Proxmire talk is nonsense. (The visitor owns to being something of a conservative and Ole knows it and forgives him for it.)

O: "You're missing the point again. We're talking about publicity. Sure, I know Proxmire can't subsidize the farmers and help the small businessman and get more defense work for Wisconsin manufacturers and increase pensions and get more money for the schools and all the rest, and still cut taxes for the average voter."

"You forget the political science of our times, my boy. I know that being governor is a tougher job than being senator. I know the governor is the man on the spot, on all state issues, and that often he wishes he could get a good piece in the paper simply by saying he's going to introduce a bill. The question is, does the voter know it, or if he knows it, does he remember it? The smart politician today is the fellow who tells the voters as often as possible what he's going to do for them, preferably in big mass groups, and preferably in separate releases. He figures one group won't notice what he's promising to the other, and I believe he's right."

V: "You old rascal, you're a cynic."

O: "George Bernard Shaw used to say that what people call cynicism is usually a capacity for truthful observation that they don't possess themselves."

Higher Life Insurance Tax Exemptions Sought

But Legislators Eye Treasury, Take Cautious Approach

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Life insurance firms are pressing for legislation to enlarge life insurance benefit exemptions under state inheritance tax laws.

The subject has been debated at several recent sessions of the legislature, and the 1957 legislative session is being studied by an interim committee which has now begun its investigation. The subject is being studied by a joint legislative-judicial committee headed by more liberal than Wisconsin Assemblyman V. Allen Grady, have testified they assert that the payment of life insurance proceeds to a surviving wife or children is in the nature of a Wisconsin law now provides demerit for loss of wages, and should not be taxed. Legislators have shown a cautious reaction thus far, partly because of the worries about the condition of the state treasury. State income is in narrow balance with disbursements, and the tax department will be asked for an analysis of revenue loss through further exemptions, before the committee payable to the estate of an insured, the exemption does not extend to the change to the legislature as a whole.

Rain Turns Roads Into Glare Ice

County Police Say Highways Jammed With Cars in Ditch

A short but deadly rain turned highways in Outagamie county, especially the section near Appleton, into glare ice and sent dozens of cars into ditches between 6:30 and 10:30 Sunday night.

County police said sections of highways along hills and curves were jammed with cars off the road and in the ditch. Police made 12 calls for cars in the ditch and many minor accidents were reported. County sanding trucks got on the roads about an hour after the ice started forming and by 10:30 the roads were fairly passable. County Police Captain Ronald E. Decker said.

Democrats Study Essay Contest as Campaign Effort

Milwaukee—The feasibility of using an essay contest to raise campaign funds for 1958 is going to be examined by the Wisconsin Democratic party.

The party's administrative committee Saturday voted to study such a project, despite apparent coolness on the part of some members.

William S. Clark of Milwaukee, who made the proposal said each entrant would pay a $1 fee and the prize would be a new automobile. The contest, properly advertised, might make $100,000 for the party, he said.

The committee voted, 10-7, to approve the study of the plan, $2,433 on N. Richmond street with about 10 members of the (Highway 47); $867 on W. Seymour street (Highway 10); $972 on S. Oneida street (Highway 10); $3,730 on Wisconsin avenue (Highway 96); $1,275 on W. College avenue (Highway 125); and $2,745 on Badger avenue (Highway 10).

The costs are based on repairs, marking, snow removal, traffic control and cleaning. They are compiled by the street department and engineering department.

Clark said the subject of the essay might be "Why I am a Democrat," or even "Why I am a Republican."

In another action, the Democrats adopted a $115,000 campaign budget for 1958.

Maintenance of state highways within Appleton cost the city $13,401.20 in 1957, the city has informed the state.

The report is necessary because state law requires its filing before state aid will be paid.

Appleton has 8.8 miles of state highways within its limits. It received a total of $4,440 in aid during 1957 for maintaining the 8.8 miles.

City Clerk Elden Broehm told the state $1,378.90 was spent on Memorial drive (Highway 47); $2,433 on N. Richmond street (Highway 47); $867 on W. Seymour street (Highway 10); $972 on S. Oneida street (Highway 10); $3,730 on Wisconsin avenue (Highway 96); $1,275 on W. College avenue (Highway 125); and $2,745 on Badger avenue (Highway 10).

Before lights were installed, he said, residents noticed no interference in the sets. Now, they do. Even when the lights are in the middle of one of their signals and there can be no shorts. The only change, then, Volkman deduces, is the presence of stopped vehicles.

Any electrical arc will cause the interference, he said, and an inspection by his department shows there are no shorts anywhere in the lights.

This leads him to believe that faulty ignitions in trucks and cars which now must stop at the lights is the cause.

Woman Continues to be 'Tagged' With Ex's Initials by Laundry

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN: Will you please help me with a problem that may look like a joke, but it's not funny at all.
I am divorced. Whenever I send my bundle to the laundry, everything is returned with my ex-husband's initials. Even the new things are marked in this way for "identification." I hate to see my recently purchased sheets and pillow slips marked with initials that are no longer mine. Do you have a solution? Thank you.—TAGGED.

Landers

mark clothes, but there is a solution to your problem. Switch to a laundry that uses the pin-tag labeling method or one of the newer techniques.
DEAR ANN: My 16-year-old daughter has two girl friends who have always been welcome in our home. They live on the other side of town and spend the night with us often. The other evening the three girls went to a ball game. One of the girls was asked by a boy if he could drive her home. I had no objection to this. However, I didn't like it when she sat in front of the house for 20 minutes. When I asked her to come in she became angry. She sat there 20 minutes more. Then I insisted. She stamped into the house, picked up her belongings and went home. She said I was mean and that the reason she didn't come in right away was because the boy had fallen asleep. My daughter is very upset with me and said I had no business being so bossy since the girl was not doing anything wrong, and that I am not her mother. What is your opinion?—MRS. BEL-LICOSE
You were not wrong nor do I think you should hang the label "Bellicose" on yourself. When your daughter's friends stay at your home you are responsible for them, and have the right to expect them to obey you. Any girl who would sit in a car with a boy and watch him sleep is stupid. I suggest this young lady stay at home until she brightens up.

'Banker Look' Forecast for Male Clothing Trend

Los Angeles.—The California Men's Apparel club, currently conducting showings for buyers here, says the ivy league look is a thing of the past—it's retreating to the eastern campuses from whence it came.
"The young executive look is the thing now," a CALMAC spokesman said.
What's the difference? The "young executive" is not so tight or so short in the trousers.
"More what a young banker would wear," the spokesman observed.
Other trends:
Colors are dark, ties a little wider and whiter, the three-button sack suit is still tops, materials are lighter in weight and synthetics are king.

Indianapolis Businessman

Jayne's Bridegroom Reveals U.S. Fortune Built in 10 Years

BY JAMES BACON
Portuguese Bend, Calif.—The whole world knows almost everything about Jayne Mansfield who will become the bride tonight of Mickey Hargitay at Wayfarers' chapel.
But what about the 29-year-old bridegroom of whom little is known except that he is a big hunk of man loved by one of Hollywood's most publicized glamor queens?

The husky Hungarian never has talked much about himself but the story of his 10 years in America is something Horatio Alger would have loved.
When he and Jayne return from their Texas and Florida honeymoon, they'll move into a $150,000 Holmby Hills estate that has 11 bathrooms and eight bedrooms. It is located on two acres of the choicest Sunset boulevard land. It once belonged to Rudy Vallee.
Gave Jayne House
The house is Mickey's wedding present to his bride. He had already given her a $25,000 diamond engagement ring.
You don't give gifts like that on money earned from weight lifting. To the general public Mickey has been publicized as a muscle man but he hasn't lifted a bar bell in years.
He was born Miklos Hargitay, son of a wealthy Budapest theater owner and his wife. He had just finished his freshman year at the University of Budapest when the Communists took over.

"I never liked Communism anyhow," Mickey told a reporter at a pre-nuptial dinner last night. "So when they wanted me to go in the army and serve in Russia I took the passport I had as a child and enough money to get me to America."
Worked in Market
Only 19, Mickey landed in New York with no knowledge of English. He got a $2-a-day job in a Brooklyn fruit market. As his English improved he got better jobs and was able to save enough money to go to Indianapolis where he had friends.
There he invested his savings in a vacant lot. With the friends' help a bank loaned him enough to construct a house. The house, which he built mostly by himself, was sold for an $8,000 profit. That first sight ever since "was parlayed into a construction company that has built as many as 13 houses at a time in Indianapolis.

By his third year in this country he had $50,000 in the bank. Next came a deal with a major oil company to build filling stations, some of which he still owns. Other money went into physical culture gyms in the Indianapolis area. There his physique got him an offer from the AAU to represent the United States in the Mr. Universe competition in London. He won.

Love at First Sight
He left his businesses in the hands of a partner for a fling in show business as part of an adagio dance act. Mae West saw him and put him in her act of muscle men. On May 13, 1956, Jayne and song writer Julie Styne had a date to go to New York's El Morocco.
"For some reason," Jayne recalled, "We went to the Latin Quarter instead. I saw Mick-

The Family Council

Divorce Cuts Deep Wounds; Difficult to Spare Pain

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Jack D. — Bea isn't doing right by her father.

Beatrice D. — I couldn't wound my mother.

Jack D. — My wife and I are having quite a dispute over her parents.

Her mother and father were divorced some 10 years ago and haven't seen each other since. Her father remarried, but is now separated from his second wife. He isn't a well man and lives quite far from us. He has written that he would like to come to see us some holiday. That's the only time he can get away from his business.

My wife invites her mother for every holiday. That's okay with me, except I don't think it's fair to leave out the old grandfather. Perhaps, as a follow her own impulses in such a man, he can't help identifying an important matter.

she is not doing right by her with another man. It bothers him that a child's loyalty can be dedicated exclusively to one parent.

It is also possible that Jack sympathizes with Beatrice's own definite desire to see her father. According to her own account, it is really fear of her mother that prevents her from arranging this.

Beatrice must accept the fact that divorce necessarily entails hurt feelings. The old he says the holiday is the only wounds open easily — usually time he can make it. Well, if on both sides. Out of fear of he can't arrange something for hurting her mother. Beatrice himself in order to see his own daughter and grandchildren. I don't know what I'm supposed to do about it.

I don't see why Jack should interfere in this business, anyway. They're not his parents. I have a right to do as I like about them.

The Council: Beatrice should not resent her husband's "interference." His concern reflects his interest in his entire family. Possibly he would like deep. Beatrice should recognize his children to know their nize that she has a right to old grandfather. Perhaps, as a follow her own impulses in such a man, he can't help identifying an important matter.

she is not doing right by her with another man. It bothers

Nixons Hold Open House for Senators, Wives

Washington — Vice President and Mrs. Nixon opened their new home to all members of the senate yesterday and 66 senators from both parties showed up for dancing, conversation and a buffet.

The party ran from 5 to 8 o'clock. Dancing was in the basement recreation room, to music by a navy orchestra.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas and his wife were the first guests to arrive. Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and Mrs. Knowland came in soon after.

The Nixons moved into their big stone house in northwest Washington last year. The vice president spent a good part of his time taking senate wives on guided tours.

"He took us all over," the wife of one Democratic senator said.

Turkey and ham sandwiches and cakes, arranged buffet style, were served in the dining room.

Neckline Soil Always Problem

By Marian Matthews

A problem for many women is the dirt that forms at the neckline of clothing. Usually it is in the back and some women complain no amount of cleansing seems to correct the difficulty. It takes daily care to combat it effectively.

A good supply of natural oils at the back of the neck is the underlying cause for the soiled collar bugaboo. Grime and soil naturally cling to it and will rub off on clothing. During cold weather when you wear heavy clothing or bundle up about the neckline there is bound to be an increase of the oil flow and this plus perspiration can be discouraging.

Cleanse your neck carefully and even though the back area is oily, use a light or liquifying cream to help cleanse more thoroughly at first. Follow this step by washing with soap and water. Use a fairly crisp brush at the back area cleansing from hairline to top of shoulderblade area. Rinse away all soap. Pat dry and dust with talcum.

Front Dry While the oils at the back of the neck present a cleansing problem, the very lack of them at the front of the neck is another difficulty. Hence we see crepey and lined throatlins at front while the back of the same neck is relatively smooth. For this reason the above cleansing steps should be reserved for the back of the neck only.

Cleanse front of neck from base to chin with soft cream and wipe off with tissue. Apply a lubricating cream and let remain overnight or for at least 20 minutes.

To help overcome the ring inside the neckline of clothing be sure you wear fresh blouses daily or other garments which have not accumulated soil. Protect your neck from heavy coats and furs with fresh little scarfs inside the neckline.

Only by treating it as a daily problem can you win any success.

Bearded Scholar Tells Impressions Of University Life in England

BY BETTY KILICH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A black -bearded student, whose scholarship-supported studies have taken him around the world, currently is centering his academic pursuits within the walls of Oriel college of Oxford university.

Mike Hammond

But because a 6-week recess between terms has given him the necessary time for a few weeks visit at home, Mike Hammond is spending the holiday period in Appleton with his family. Mr. and Mrs. Chris Borggren, 824 E. John street.

With 14 years of his coveted Rhodes scholarship behind him, Hammond is able to bring back with him stories and impressions of varied experiences from within the grooves of British academe. His intellectual pursuits broken by various extra curriculars—he's secretary of a college basketball team and has organized a barbershop octet—the student offers his listeners a verbal portrait of campus life quite different from that found in this country.

Tutor Guidance

In Oxford, he relates, students embark upon a program of highly intensive individual study guided by a tutor in each field. His course, for instance, consists of philosophy, physiology and psychology, with an honorary BA awaiting him when he completes his examinations in June, 1958.

No lecture periods or seminars dot his schedule, but rather he meets with his tutors weekly and presents them with an essay written on his subjects of study.

His living quarters, supplied by the college, are far different from the dormitories or fraternity houses found on American campuses. Each student is housed in a suite consisting of a sitting room and bedroom. A heavy oak door guarantees seclusion when study time approaches.

As an added British touch, a man servant takes care of the suite, washes dishes and cares for students' clothing. One servant is assigned to several students, Hammond explains.

No Administration

None of the colleges within the university are governed by a hierarchy of administrative officers, but rather are run by the tutors themselves. And because there are no college-supported activities, any extra curriculars must be organized by students themselves.

"If some one wants to start a folk singing society, they just tack up a notice some place and any one interested will drop by his room for a cup of coffee and discussion on the possibility of forming a group."

"The same is true with sports. We don't have athletic directors or personnel of that sort, so when we play basketball it's just because we like the game. We have to arrange our own matches and pay for our own trips. There's no financial support from the school for any sports and teams are organized for pure love of the game."

Another feature of British academic life probably not found in the United States are reading parties organized between terms. Because the three 6-week vacations and one 16-week vacation each year, students may pool their funds, rent an apartment or house in France or Italy and spend their free time reading and getting acquainted with the new territory.

"These aren't vacations," Hammond points out. "Our tutors see to it we have lots of assigned reading over the recesses so we'll spend about seven hours a day studying and the rest wandering."

Political Action

Oxfordians are vitally interested in politics and many associations for political action are organized on the campus, he goes on.

"Oxford students watch world happenings outside the campus and take action when an international event disturbs them."

"They were convulsed by the Suez and Hungarian crises and just about every college began some sort of action. And when they raise money, it means taking it out of their own pockets rather than soliciting funds."

Turning to international affairs and his impressions of feelings toward America, Hammond notes America is not greatly loved by European peoples and "no one, absolutely no one, likes Dulles. They feel that Eisenhower either has no opinions or doesn't trust his opinions about world happenings and his words are put into his mouth by Dulles."

No Lead Taken

"Europeans' attitudes toward the U.S. and their dislike of Dulles, of course, is generated by our foreign policy. On really important matters like the Middle East, where we should take a strong lead, we haven't. As a result, the lead is in Russia's hands."

"Europeans tend to lean toward the Democratic party, mostly because of FDR and because they still see the Republican party as one of modified isolationism. They were pleased with the Point Four program and Marshall plan under the Truman administration and have a great respect for Stevenson."

"Right now, they feel our foreign policy is a stop gap measure rather than a firm, foresighted program."

Hammond plans to leave for the east this weekend and will fly back to his school in England. Prior to his entering Oxford, the young man studied in India under a Rotary scholarship. He is a graduate of Lawrence college and Appleton High school.

Defense Redesigned, Put in Bright Package

'Bold, New Programs' Not New, Alsop Says, But Revamping of Existing Measures

BY STEWART ALSOP

Washington — When that tactless fellow, former Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, was asked whether he considered a defense budget of $400 billion too high, he replied: "I wouldn't think so. That would hardly cover the increased cost of inflation."

Charlie Wilson's words are worth bearing in mind, in trying to judge the reality that lies behind the fine words of the president's state of the union message. Budgets are boring, at least to most people. But the defense budget does provide a fairly accurate measuring stick of the national response to the Soviet challenge.

$400 billion defense budget really represent? The answer seems to be the new level does not really represent any sharp increase in the over-all defense effort at all, but only a shift of emphasis. Take the projected 1959 defense spending budget. It is expected to include about $700 million more for personnel pay. This will provide some needed extra butter for those who get the raise. But it will provide no new guns.

Just New Kind The fact is that, instead of buying a lot more defense, the administration means to buy a somewhat different kind of defense. Take the air force as an example. The air force share of the new budget will be about $19 billion, a proportion now long sanctified by tradition. Included in this share are big increases for such air force missiles as Atlas and Thor. But these increases will be balanced by sharp cutbacks in spending for manned aircraft, notably the B-52 strategic bomber, the basic weapon of the strategic air command. The increased missile effort will also be financed out of our already depleted conventional forces. Still another cut of 100,000 in military personnel is contemplated.

As in the past, the ample, Secretary of the Air Force James Douglas predicted that in the fairly near future we shall be producing many more ICBMs than we shall have of our potential enemy. The increase on the order of $3 billion over the current level, work is to be started on only of money. But power is a relative matter, and the only realistic way to measure our defense effort is in terms of the power for effort to ensure our ability to fight limited wars. Perhaps it is too early to judge, particularly now that defense has become what it would what redesigned, and put into new packages. (Copyright, 1958) the air force to start work immediately on six more bases. than total. It will be said—correctly—which did a similar job, reaching a similar conclusion, asking for economy reasons, seriously—that $40 billion is a lot of money. But power is a relative matter, and the only realistic way to measure our defense effort is in terms of the power for effort to ensure our ability to fight limited wars. Perhaps it is too early to judge, particularly now that defense has become what it would what redesigned, and put into new packages. (Copyright, 1958)

To Your Good Health

Molner Discusses Scope of Complete Physical Checkup

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to have a complete physical examination and checkup. I have had one child. Just what is included in a complete physical? How is a male tested for cancer?" Mrs. G. G."

Dr. Molner

I'm sure you don't realize it, but the simple and sensible question you have asked puts me on a hot spot. You see, most doctors have their own ideas as to how extensive a "complete examination" should be. If money is no object, several days in the hospital, and a lot of laboratory tests, would be quite in order. It might cost, say $400 or up.

But most of us can't afford that sort of thing. (A "complete" examination of your car by a mechanic, removing the head, testing compression, tests of battery, gasoline tank, tires, brake fluid, wheel balance, road test, headlight focus, gas mileage, greasing, winterizing, check of timing, new undercoating, fender bumping, and touch up job, plus a wash, wax and vacuum cleaning and so on could run to quite a lot of money, but most of us with an ordinary good car would say we didn't need that much.)

Same with a physical examination. We have a good idea of what we do or do not need. One person knows his stomach needs some G.I. (gastro-intestinal) X-rays. Another knows his eyes are acting up. Another is tired; another has foot trouble but is generally in good health, and so on.

So my first advice is this: Everybody should have a family physician, who, over a period of years, knows your strong points and weak points. Somebody who understands your job, your family, your stomach, your nerves, your eyes, feet and skin; your family history and your problems and your energy; your quirks and peculiarities.

Clues Point Way A physician usually gets as many clues (often more) from what you tell him as from anything else. Once a clue points in a given direction, then special tests can be done in that direction, of course.

But the question isn't those special tests. What is a "general" checkup? I'd say this is a minimum, with due regard for thoroughness, yet not being too costly for ordinary salaries:

Physical examination of the body; inspection of color of skin and eyes; blood pressure and pulse; survey of lips, mouth and throat; examination of heart, abdomen, pelvis, rectum; check of urine for albumin, sugar, pus or blood; hemoglobin test of blood, for any sign of anemia.

Add to this, for men, check of prostate; for women, check of breasts for lumps or lesions. Many believe a "smear test" of the cervix is a must; others call for a smear only if the cervix does not look normal.

Some prefer a cardiogram in all cases; others depend on the stethoscope unless there is some suspicious sign. Many doctors regard examination of lower bowel with a proctoscope as a must; some don't. I consider it very good.

And certainly a chest X-ray (perhaps a TB society X-ray) as a definite must. X-ray of stomach, gall bladder, colon, kidneys, etc., are fine, but let's put them in the list of things to do if some sign or symptom indicates their necessity.

Gives Relief "Dear Dr. Molner: Would pregnancy be apt to cause arthritis to become worse?" Mrs. R. P."

Quite the reverse. Pregnancy usually causes complete relief from arthritis symptoms. This starts in the first few months and continues through to delivery. It is probably due to hormone changes occurring during the pregnancy.

Hot Bath Relaxing "Dear Dr. Molner: How would you like to settle an argument? Hubby loves soaking in a hot tub two or three times a week. Says he throws off fatigue and poisons. Isn't that weakening?" J. & R. F."

It is relaxing and makes for a good bath. Settled? (Copyright, 1958)

Ike Demolishes Tricky Russian Peace Offensive

Letter to Bulganin Debunks Kremlin Piety On Peace, Arms Race

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Eisenhower has demolished the Soviet's tricky peace offensive. He has called the bluff of the Kremlin in one of the most effective pronouncements ever made on the subject of "summit" conferences, disarmament and non-aggression pacts.

Lawrence

The president's letter to Bulganin completely debunks Russia's alleged piety on the matter of disarmament and peace. It sets forth in concrete terms the steps that will have to be taken before any "summit" conference could be worthwhile.

What Eisenhower does is to lay down the conditions for such a conference in terms so plain and explicit that, if the Soviets are sincere, they will welcome the proposals. Otherwise, they will stand convicted of insincerity and hypocrisy before the whole world.

The president, moreover, revealed the emptiness of the Soviet proposal for "summit" conferences so long as the United Nations organization is ignored, defied and denounced by the communists.

Eisenhower says, in effect, that if the Kremlin had respected the U. N. charter, there would be no need today for any "summit" conferences and no necessity for a handful of bigwigs to try to settle the affairs of 80 nations. The president points out that an organization to enforce peace, with specific procedures to follow in every contingency, already exists but has been frustrated by the repeated veto of the Soviet Union in the security council.

Prepared by Experts
The Eisenhower letter was prepared by the Department of State's experts headed by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It is a document that shows the result of meticulous research into the past pledges given by the Soviets that have been flagrantly violated. Putting it all together — starting with a discussion of the Yalta agreements that have since been broken — the letter to Bulganin is a state paper of transcendent importance in modern history. It will encourage free men everywhere, including the enslaved in Hungary and central Europe, who still yearn for freedom.

"Peace and good will among men," says the president, "have been the heartfelt desire of peoples since time immemorial. But professions of peace by governmental leaders have not always been a dependable guide to their actual intentions."

The president traces in his letter the Soviet record and challenges the Kremlin to make good on its pledges and to give evidence of its sincerity. He makes a host of far-reaching proposals — all the way from a cessation of testing of nuclear weapons and the abolition of stockpiles of bombs and missiles under a system of trustworthy inspection to the reunification of Germany and the holding of free elections in the captive countries. What the president says may be summarized in this way:

"We are with you in principle in trying to find a way to disarmament and peace. Let's get together through the proper officials and see if there is any chance of agreement. If there is something specific worked out, some progress that we can see ahead of time, I'll go anywhere in the world to attend a 'summit' conference or any other kind of conference to sign such an agreement. But there must be a reliable means of protection so that we shall know you will keep your word."

Significant Difference
Most significant is the way the president emphasizes the difference between a free government and a dictatorship. He outlines how the people of the United States "exert such constitutional control over government that no government could possibly initiate an aggressive war."

Eisenhower's letter is a milestone in the negotiating process. He scorns the private deal type of "summit" conference and calls for conferences step by step through diplomatic channels. Then, he says, a meeting by heads of state to ratify everything that has been done can be held.

This is the boldest challenge presented by the democracies of the world in the entire east-west struggle since the ending of world war II. It will rally the free world and should clear away once and for all any doubts about American leadership. Even in an age of missiles, America hasn't lost its perspective or its determination or its capacity for understanding deception and trickery in the guise of propaganda for a "summit" conference. HEART TROUBLE LEADING CAUSE OF DEATH

By Upton X. Furman
Chiropractor, Neenah

Heart trouble as the cause of death leads all others in this country, and is responsible for twice as many deaths as cancer, which is second high.

The increase in heart trouble can be traced to three primary causes: first, changes in the blood produced by foreign sera; second, wrong hygiene, e.g., not enough rest, dissipation, excitement, worry, and emotional stress; third, mechanical irritation of nerves leading to the heart caused by direct or indirect spinal injury at some former time.

The spinal nerves control and coordinate the rhythm and function of the heart to the needs of the body. Many heart symptoms can be traced to an unbalanced spinal nerve supply caused by nerve irritations.

A chiropractor is especially trained to locate and remove nerve irritations. A healthful and extended life is assured when all things relating to the welfare of your body are taken care of.

Lesson in English

BY W. L. GORDON

Words often misused: In best usage, "between" applies to only two, and "among" to more than two. "He was caught BETWEEN two fires." "He is a man AMONG men."

Often mispronounced: Cui (cooking). Pronounce day. kwee-zen, accent on second syllable.

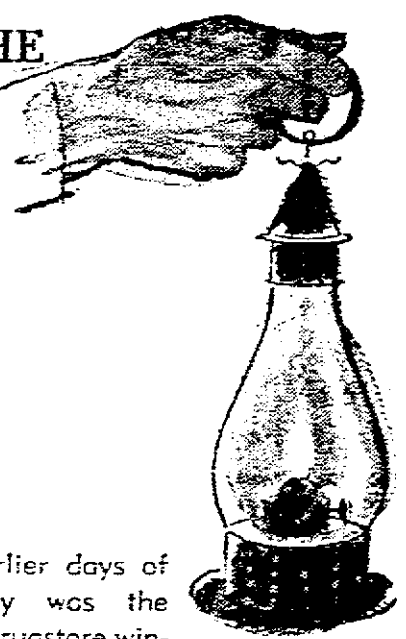

Often misspelled: Retch (to vomit). Wretch (miserable person).

Synonyms: Flagrant, atrocious, disgraceful, glaring, heinous, monstrous, odious, outrageous, scandalous, shameful, shocking, wanton.

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: inclemency, state of being severe, harsh, stormy. "They were discouraged from making the trip by the inclemency of the weather."

THE LAMP IN THE WINDOW

Symbolic of the earlier days of American pharmacy was the lighted lamp in the drugstore window. All through the night it glowed, a beacon of hope, a symbol of unselfish service.

Although the historic lamp is now practically extinct, the fundamentals of pharmaceutical practice have changed but little. The responsibilities of the pharmacist are greater today than ever before — he is a vital factor in medical care. Your patronage is invited.

Zephyrs Stall For 6 Minutes; Cop 43-37

Wausau Held Scoreless in Final Period

By HERB VAN DRIEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — St. Mary Zephyrs went into a stall with a 41-36 lead and six minutes to play and, after holding the ball for five minutes and 59 seconds, Pat Below uncorked a long two-pointer to give them an unusual 43-36 win over Wausau Newman here Saturday night.

When the Zephyrs went into their stall, Wausau Coach Jim Kurzynski told his players to wait for St. Mary's to come to them. The Zephyrs then proceeded to play catch among themselves for 359 seconds, while the Cardinals watched.

The fourth period was also unusual in that Wausau failed to score a point. St. Mary's held a slim 37-36 margin after three quarters of play and baskets by Pat Below and Joe Rechner in the first two minutes of the final period increased the lead to 41-36. The six minute deep freeze followed.

St. Mary's held 13-6 first quarter and 22-19 half time leads as both squads were unable to find the hoop. The Zephyrs hit at a poor 21 per cent field goal margin the first half while Wausau did even worse by making only four two-pointers in 27 tries for an unofficial 15 per cent pace.

Shoot Better Things got better in the third quarter, however, as the Zephyrs sank six out of 13 attempts for a mark of 46 per cent and Wausau hit on eight of 17 attempted goals for 47 per cent.

Below led the Zephyrs with 14 markers on five buckets and four gift tosses. Norm Brown hit four fielders from the corner and Gary Bailey dumped, in seven points on a pair of goals and three free throws.

Game scoring honors went to Don Brezinski of Wausau who tallied 16 points, 11 of them in the third period.

Call 38 Fouls A total of 38 fouls were called during the game with the Zephyrs in error 18 times and Wausau 20 times. The free throw shooting also was poor with St. Mary's making 11 of 26 gifters for a 42 per cent mark and Wausau 12 of 24 for 50 per cent.

The loss was only the second for Wausau this season compared to seven wins. St. Mary's season record now stands at 6-2.

Marquette '5' Ends Louisville Jinx, 85 to 79

Scores First Win Over Cardinals in Last Six Starts

Milwaukee —P— Marquette withstood a late challenge by Louisville and upset the basketball Cardinals 85-79 Saturday night before an arena crowd of 5,614.

It was the Warriors' first triumph over the Cards in their last six meetings. The Cardinals beat Marquette, 73-65, earlier this season at Louisville.

Marquette led, 39-35, at the half, but Louisville's Gerald DuPont, the game's high scorer with 25 points, tied the score at 41-41 on a jump shot and again at 43-43 on two free throws. Ralph Goldstein's jump shot gave Louisville a 45-45 tie before Marquette went ahead for keeps.

Marquette was leading, 71-62, with seven minutes to play when Louisville rallied for six straight points, but the Warriors erased that threat with six points.

John Glaser led the Warriors with 24 points. Ron Dibellus accounted for 17.

The victory was Marquette's fifth against six losses this season. The Cardinals have won six and lost six.

Bobby Cox Signs Pact With Rams

Minneapolis —P— Minnesota quarterback Bobby Cox said Sunday he has signed a contract with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football league.

The 23-year-old quarterback, who quit Washington university after his sophomore season to enroll at Minnesota, was drafted by the Rams last year.

The Rams are expected to give him a trial both at quarterback and as a defensive back.

Revolutionary PAT Option Written Into Football Law

Milt Bruhn Doesn't Like Rule Change

Milwaukee —P— Football coach Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin considered the new NCAA rule on points-after-touchdown Sunday night and said, "I don't like it."

The NCAA football rules committee decided Sunday that a team will get two points after touchdown if it runs or passes for the conversion. A place kick conversion still will be good for one point.

Under the old rule, a team got only one point after touchdown no matter how it converted — kick, run or pass.

"Change Our Thinking"

Reached at Madison for comment, Bruhn said, "Here we've been trying to develop place kickers, and now we'll have to change our thinking completely."

"I'm actually astounded the new rule went through. There was no demand for it on the part of the coaches."

Coach Johnny Druze of Marquette also expressed surprise. Asked to comment, he said, "Actually, I haven't given it too much thought as yet. I want to think over all the angles, and I might change my mind on whether it's a good or bad thing for the game."

"It'll certainly cut down on ties," Druze said.

The Marquette coach said, "I think it'll open the game up and put a premium on strategy after scoring a touchdown."

Two Points Possible on Run or Pass

BY MERCER BAILEY
Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—P— Football coaches have a new strategy problem to cope with today: Is it better to try for a 1-point conversion after a touchdown, or gamble for a 2-pointer.

That option—one point if kicked, two points if by a run or a pass—was written into football law Sunday, along with a more liberal substitution rule and several other changes.

The new scoring rule, first change in football's point system in more than 40 years, and other revisions were adopted at the closing session of the football rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Comes as Surprise
The scoring change—designed to reduce the number of ties and boost fan appeal—came as a surprise. Proposed by Committee Chairman H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, athletic director at Michigan. The rule originally was scheduled for a year's study by a subcommittee.

"Sure it'll kick up a controversy," said Crisler.

Opinion of coaches was divided.

Badger Five Plays At Illinois Tonight

UW Nudges Ohio State For First Big 10 Win

Champaign, Ill. —P— Wisconsin's basketball Badgers, boasting a 67-64 weekend victory over Ohio State, continue their Big Ten campaign tonight against the University of Illinois at Champaign.

Illinois beat Wisconsin, 64-59, in their Big Ten opener Jan. 4. The Badgers pleased Coach Bud Foster with their squad cooperation in the regionally televised victory at Madison Saturday afternoon.

"That was our best team effort all year," Foster said Sunday.

Foster said, "Everybody put out. There were no flat spots."

The Badger coach praised center Ray Gross, who played without relief at center Saturday, scoring nine points and snatching 17 rebounds.

"It was his greatest effort," the coach said.

Praises Barnard
Foster added, "I just hope his feet don't bother him at Illinois. He always has trouble with them, and after that pounding for the full 40 minutes he may need a few more days to snap back."

Wisconsin's coach also praised sophomore Sam Barnard, who scored 11 points against Ohio State and did well on defense.

"It was his best effort in weeks," Foster said, "and we hope he makes full use of his great natural ability soon."

Bob Litzow led Wisconsin Saturday with 19 points, scoring seven of his team's last 12 points as the Badgers fought off a late Illinois rally.

Wisconsin led, 35-34, at the half and stayed ahead until the Buckeyes pushed in front, 56-55. The lead changed hands several times before two long shots by Litzow put Wisconsin ahead to stay, 63-60.

It was Wisconsin's first conference victory after losing to Illinois and Michigan. The loss was Ohio State's first against one league victory.

Dolph Schayes Sets Pro Cage Scoring Record

By the Associated Press
Dolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nationals ranks today as the foremost scorer in professional basketball annals.

The 29-year-old former New York University luminary eclipsed retired George Mikan's all-time pro career scoring record by collecting 23 points as Syracuse drubbed the Detroit Pistons, 135-109, Sunday.

The 6-8, 220-pound Schayes now has scored 11,770 points in 10 years of pro play, including the 1938-49 season when Syracuse was in the National Basketball league. Mikan tallied 11,764 points in nine pro campaigns.

In other games Sunday, the Cincinnati Royals overwhelmed the Boston Celtics, 115-97, the Philadelphia Warriors, paced by Neil Johnston's 33 points, downed the New York Knicks, 115-110, in overtime and the St. Louis Hawks turned back the Minneapolis Lakers, 111-105.

Before their semi-annual battle of wits with campus professors, Lawrence college's basketball Vikings have two more chances to solve a problem that equals anything semester exams can possibly offer.

The problem, of course, is how to terminate the mushrooming growth of four losing streaks.

Last Saturday's 53-38 loss to Monmouth became the sixth, eighth, twenty-second and twenty-eighth links in these respective, uninterrupted chains of misfortune: 1957-8 Midwest conference play, overall 1957-8 competition, overall conference play and overall competition for two seasons.

Lawrence's final two first-semester starts with a thin, 9-man corps will be made at Ripon Wednesday night and at Cornell Saturday night.

Appearing somewhat sluggish, invading Monmouth proved a disappointment for a defending co-championship unit that has most of last season's strength back.

Feeble Shooting Rate
In fact, Monmouth might have been "had" if the out-manned Vikings had come up with marksmanship to match their determination and ball-handling.

In field goaling at a feeble 25 per cent rate for the second straight night, the Vikes proved again that while shooting isn't everything in basketball, it's by far the most important ingredient.

The 12-for-48 performance

Gophers are Only Unbeaten Team Left in Big Ten

By the Associated Press

The topsy-turvy Big Ten basketball race picks up tempo to night with league-leading Minnesota invading Indiana's lair in one of four conference battles.

The Gophers, having played only once, are the only unbeaten challengers in the race. All the others have tasted defeat and only one game separates the teams tied for second from those in last place.

While Minnesota and Indiana tangle for the league lead, Wisconsin moves in on Illinois.

Ohio State will be at Michigan and Northwestern goes to Iowa.

Tied for Second Indiana and Michigan are tied for second with 2-1 records. Iowa, Michigan State, Northwestern and Ohio State all have split even in two games. Purdue, Illinois and Wisconsin bring up the rear with 1-2 marks. The log jam resulted from four home court victories Saturday.

Wisconsin upset Ohio State, 67-74; Northwestern knocked Michigan out of the lead, 93-72; Michigan State blasted Purdue, 84-75, and Indiana topped Illinois, 69-62.

Credit for Michigan State's victory went to Larry Hedden and John Green. Hedden, held to two free throws in an opening loss at Ohio State, scored 29 points while Green hit for 18 and was a strong rebounder.

Wimbledon Champ Wins AP Poll by Overwhelming Vote

By The Associated Press

Althea Gibson, a tall lanky, sometimes awkward girl whose athletic progress from Harlem's teeming side walks to the top of the tennis world often has been impeded by lack of competition.

Saturday scored another notable triumph—almost without a contest.

Miss Gibson, Wimbledon and American women's tennis champion, was selected as the outstanding female athlete of 1957 by an overwhelming vote of the 214 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the Associated Press year-end poll.

Two Large Trophies

Miss Gibson will receive two large trophies. One is the Fraternal Order of the Eagles—Frederick C. Miller trophy won last year by Mrs. Pat Keller McCormick, the Olympic diving champion. The other is the Babe Didrikson Zaharias trophy, presented in memory of the famed all-around athlete who was selected six times as the nation's outstanding woman in the AP poll.

The 30-year-old New York girl, who started out playing paddle tennis on the sidewalks, received 420 out of a possible 516 points in the balloting. Nearest to her was Patty Berg, 95 points. Bowling champion Marion Ladewig came in third with 81.

O'Malley Studying Costs of 'Converting' Rose Bowl

time is at hand for a decision on whether Dodge boss Walter O'Malley gets the Rose bowl as a playing site.

The engineers, architects and cost experts have come up with facts and figures. O'Malley knows what he'll have to spend to convert the football stadium into a baseball park.

Some outsiders have the notion that the cost is prohibitive and that O'Malley is going to skip both the Rose bowl and the Los Angeles Memorial coliseum. They believe he'll decide on Wrigley field, which accommodates only 22,000.

Buz O'Malley and his aides have claimed all along that they are earnestly negotiating for the Rose bowl and that they are convinced it can be made into a first-class baseball plant. If the Rose bowl deal falls through and the present impasse with Coliseum officials isn't solved, Wrigley field seems the home of the Dodgers for 1958.

Erdelatz Said To be in Line For Aggie Job

College Station, Texas — The

plot thickened around the Texas A&M college football coaching situation today with Navy's Eddie Erdelatz and Iowa State's Jim Myers both appearing confident of the job if they want it.

Aggie officials denied knowing anything about contacts with Erdelatz.

The Texas A&M athletic council planned to recommend a coach to the college board of directors today. Erdelatz was to fly to Texas today, reportedly to talk with Aggie officials Tuesday.

Myers, twice interviewed by the athletic council, was to announce his decision later today. Until Sunday, Myers was considered the No. 1 candidate.

The San Antonio, Texas, Light said Sunday Erdelatz would become the new A&M football coach and athletic director. The Light said, without naming its source, Erdelatz had "agreed enthusiastically" to the financial terms and "all other considerations" at A&M.

Monmouth '5' Hands Vikes

53-38 Defeat

(an exact duplicate of last Friday's chart) doesn't begin to tell the story of Lawrence's shooting ineptitude against the Scots. After hitting six baskets in the first 10 minutes of play, (and matching the favorites virtually point for point) the Vikes could manage only six more goals in the final 30 minutes. Lawrence had to settle for one point in the first nine minutes of the second half and bagged only one field goal in the initial 12 minutes of the final stanza.

Slow Down Play The Lawrence's slowed down the tempo of play for the second straight game, executing a weave (sometimes for nearly two minutes) and waiting for a good shot. The Vikes moved the ball with above-average facility and set up a goodly number of favorable shots. But, the best-laid plans of Coach Don Boya went awry when his charges couldn't hit the target.

Because of the deliberate nature of the Lawrence offense, each team had time to take only 48 shots in the 40 minutes—probably as low a total as a college game has produced in a long time. Monmouth had a respectable 17-for-48 (35.4 per cent) success mark for the game. But, in the second half, the Scots could do no better than six for 24.

Both teams showed considerably more skill from the foul line. The Scots compiled an average of .731 (19 for 26) while the Vikes hit .706 (12 for 17). In the first 10 minutes of play, the Vikes held the lead three times (2-0, 7-6 and 12-11) and were tied on five other occasions. When the first three Lawrence-attempted shots (by Rick Ramsey, Tom Kayser and Willie Weber) went through the hoop, it looked as though it might be a busy night for a trumpeter and a drummer who lent considerable musical support from the sidelines.

Ahead to Stay However, with 9:10 of the first half remaining, Jerry McBride hit the top of the arc to put Monmouth ahead, 17-15. Never again headed, the Scots took a 31-23 margin to their dressing room and upholstered their lead to 18 points (42-24) in the first nine minutes of the second half. A Tom Kayser gift throw (with 3:04 gone) was the only Vike point in this incredibly arid 9-minute span.

Monmouth's Bob Yarde, 6-2 forward, made five of 13 attempts from the floor and each of his six foul shots for the night's top yield of 16 points. Guard McBride, a second-team all-conference choice last year, was the most accurate shooter, with 4-for-7, and he finished with 10 points.

Guard Bill Wood connected four times from the field and six times from the charity line for the top Lawrence scoring effort. Against a team with a good bench, the five Vike starters—Wood, Ramsey, Weber, Kayser and Jack Leatham—went practically the entire route and gave it all they had.

Foiled in Pre-Dawn Fight

Gunman Attempts to Snatch Receipts Of Bing Crosby Golf Tournament

Pebble Beach, Calif. — An attempt to rob the Bing Crosby Golf tournament of an estimated $100,000 in receipts ended in a fight for a gun and capture of the gunman before dawn today, a sheriff's deputy said.

Tom Martin, a Monterey county deputy sheriff guarding two safes across the street from the plus Del Monte lodge, said he suffered powder burns in the struggle before overpowering the unidentified gunman and taking him to jail at nearby Salinas.

Won't Give Name

The man refused to give any name and was booked as John Doe pending an investigation of armed robbery charges.

Martin said it all happened about 1:30 in the morning when Chester Gillette, treasurer of Del Monte Properties company, and Frank Morton, an auditor, started to get in their car outside the offices.

"This gunman came across the street and got in the back of their car," Martin said. "He had a suitcase, some adhesive tape and some binding ropes. He told Gillette a partner was holding Mrs. Gillette down the road. He said if they resisted in any way, they would be killed and Mrs. Gillette, too."

Martin said the gunman forced the two men to open the front door of the Finance building. "But in order to get where the safes were, they had to call me," he said.

Dropped Gun "It was only after I had opened the door that I saw this man had a gun in their backs. I had a gun too, but if I used it I figured they would be killed, so I dropped my gun at his orders and got face down on the floor."

I pretended I was very sick and the ruse worked. When he came close I grabbed his gun and there was an awful fight. The safes contained all the receipts from ticket sales, concessions and money used for operating expenses.

Crosby turns over the take from the tourney to charity. The event ended Sunday with Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., the winner of the pro-amateur tourney.

Role Found Preston, Star of TV's 'Colt .45'

BY JINGO

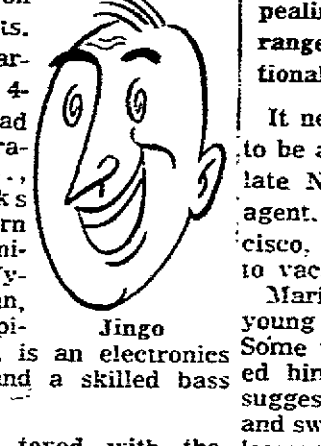

Wayde Preston is a case of the job finding the man. The job is the starring role in ABC-TV's "Colt .45" on Friday nights.

The 27-year-old, 6-foot, 4-inch towhead is from Laramie, Wyo., and speaks with a western accent. A University of Wyoming man, he holds a pilot's license, is an electronics technician and a skilled bass violinist.

He once toyed with the idea of becoming a dentist and majored in pharmacy, but the outdoors was too appealing. He became a park ranger in Grand Teton National park.

It never occurred to Preston to be an actor until he met the late Ned Martin, a Hollywood agent, on a flight to San Francisco, where Preston intended to vacation.

Martin thought the blond young fellow was a natural. Some weeks later he introduced him to Carol Ohmart. He suggested he teach her to ride and swim; she gave him drama lessons. About a year later,

How come you don't have two incomes —
when so many people do?

Have you marked time while others have marked up an extra income from investments in stocks or bonds?
Perhaps our two new booklets will clear up some of the questions you have about investing. One — "INVEST-MENT FACTS"—also lists 300 stocks that have paid dividends every three months for 20 to 94 years. "S40—AND I'M
AN OWNER OF COMMON
STOCK" explains the popular Monthly Investment Plan that lets you buy stock for as little as $40 every three months.
The coupon will bring both of these booklets to your home.
Of course, so will a phone call or a visit to our office.

Budget Message
Has No Immediate Effect on Exchange

New York—The stock market continued to drift off quietly early this afternoon.
Losses of key stocks ran from fractions to around a point.
Aircrafts, rubbers and chemicals showed somewhat more pronounced declines in a general retreat. Steels, motors, rails, oils and airlines were behind more narrowly.
President Eisenhower's budget message calling for record peacetime spending and predicting an economic upturn had scant immediate effect on the market.
Trading was fairly active at the opening then fell off to a leisurely pace which continued into the afternoon.

Boeing was down about a point and Douglas reduced a similar loss to a small fraction.
Goodyear was off around a point and Goodrich well over that.
Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet were off slightly. U. S. Steel, which eased at the opening, recovered for a small gain.
General Motors, Chrysler
and Ford all lost fractions.
Most leading rails were either off slightly or unchanged. New York Central was firm.
U. S. government bonds were a bit higher.

Pegler Likes Idea Of Theodor Heuss

Unlike Wilson, He'd Leave Fate Of World to Agents of Nations

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — The president of West Germany, named Theodor Heuss, has just made the astonishing proposal that instead of leaving the fate of mankind to the jostling of the great powers, we ought to entrust matters to discreet and reasonably earnest agents of the governments of nations — for better or worse. Heuss is fettering our own late Woodrow Wilson the reputation of Wilson's proposition expressed as "open covenants, openly arrived at." Wilson fascinated us further with collateral cracks against the machinations of the dark chancelleries of the old world. The proposition was that we and Lloyd George, Clemenceau and a number of other mutually hateful and dishonest characters produce a humane peace in a hall the size of a union station with reporters, grafters, lobbyists and indescribable riff-raff milling around and holding press conferences impromptu.

Learned Too Late

It is a continuing tragedy that Wilson acquired in his own country a great mass of popular approbation through a force of upstarts without the slightest credentials from the public, known as "the press." The plaque that accompanied Wilson abroad was as ignorant as he was Wilson, as we soon learned but alas too late, was a fool who thought he could go over the heads of all the politicians of the old world direct to the great, honest hearts of their sorrowing peoples. Their sorrowing peoples were all mixed up however, because their own press was corrupt, and anyway hordes of them could not read as much as "gents". It was a bloody awful mess.

Lloyd George found himself boss of a victorious empire only a few years after he had been chivvied down dark alleys in Birmingham as a dirty little scut. He actually got into a low-comedy fist-fight with Clemenceau who despised Wilson. Lloyd George and God with impartial contempt and vehemence Clemenceau, who wore kid gloves and was believed to have some scurvy and probably loathsome disease was the most thorough and competent cynic of them all and the most patriotic Churchill's patriotism and popularity in the second war were comparable. The Frenchmen raved about Clemenceau only because he was the one who happened to be crowing at the crest of their dungill at the winking hour of 11 a. m. on the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 18.

Twittering Twirp

Lloyd George and Wilson put their heads together and sent on a mission to Moscow a twittering twirp who had been a sort of society reporter in Philadelphia, to decide for all mankind by confidential recommendation to Wilson, that the civilized world should "recognize" the Soviet revolution of Lenin and Trotsky. The chief of this fantastic mission was William Bullitt who pressed his fabulous luck and was American ambassador to Paris when France fell in 1940. Bolshevism might have been the way of the world starting then except that Wickham Steed, a London reporter for Lord Northcliffe, threatened Lloyd George with pitiless publicity in the Daily Mail whereupon as

Bozo, the Clown, former circus and TV star of "The Big Top," Friday visited children's wards in St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton, and Theda Clark hospital, Neenah. He is shown with Mrs. Thomas Pagel, 218 North street, Little Chute, and 4-year-old George Pagel, at St. Elizabeth. Bozo spoofed the children and passed out autographs and balloons. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Lloyd George double-crossed from the first. He is still crawling around the dilapidation of son Northcliffe was crazy even Bob Moses colossal scorned then if he hadn't always been earth on the upper west side of and it is charity to say that New York, selling his books and Wilson's own Rasputin E. M. papers for eating money House of Texas, was crazier.

Bad Actors

The proposition of open covenants openly arrived at had no merit, but it did have a satanic sanctity because we had a fanatical habit of breathing open covenants openly arrived at. The vicious influence that even though his nasty malice House yielded on him his administration and the fate of after he died "Make the world the world was kept secret except insofar as George Sylvester Viereck a pro-American came into intelligent question anti-war journalist of German until a quarter-century later blood revealed the facts in Joseph Medill Patterson's "Liberty" magazine between the wars. We sent this intellectual man to prison among homos actors in our domestic political and other debris for trying to keep us out of the second war generally harmless until Wilson introduced the same disgusting

Bozo Busy Man In 2 Hospitals' Children's Wards

Bozo, the clown, was a busy man Friday and Saturday in the children's wards of St. Elizabeth and Theda Clark hospitals.

He joshed all the children in sight, making an interview all but impossible, passed out balloons and autographs and generally cavorted center stage for a variety of small groups of small fry.

Bozo has been a clown since 1929, working rodeos, thrill shows, circuses (including Ringling Brothers), TV's "The Big Top" and Hollywood.

Circus Family

He comes from a circus family, his dad owning a world famous aerial trapeze act, "The 4 Flying Dutchmen." Bozo who's around 5 feet tall, was too short to fly, so took to clowning.

Television followers of the "Ed Sullivan" show remember Bozo for his balloon act in which he shapes balloons into a number of different animals.

Bozo will be in Wisconsin through Feb. 18. Besides the Fox Cities hospital visits, the veteran clown took part in WAPL's annual March of Dimes promotion in the windows of H. C. Prange company.

Lourdes Expects 10 Million Pilgrims at Grotto in 1958

Lourdes, France — This Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli, patriarch of Venice. The $3,570,000 building was paid for by subscriptions from Roman Catholics throughout the world.
